SHEPLER BEGINS ACTION AGAINST COMMISSIONERS

COUNCIL WILL TRANSFER LIBRARY TO CITY SCHOOL BOARD

Health Boards Merger and New Traffic Rules Discussed at Meeting

Resolution Passed Declaring Council's Intention to Turn Library Over to School Board—Thru Street Traffic System Proposed But No Action Is Taken—Councilmen Take Up Question of Combining City and County Boards of Health

The regular bi-weekly session of city council Monday evening was marked by the discussion of three important matters. They are, in the order of their presentation at the meeting:

1. Suggestions relative to the adoption of a suitable system of traffic regulation.
2. The proposal to transfer the municipal library property from the control of the city to the hands of the library trustees of the city school district, and
3. The question of combining the city and county health boards.

TRANSFER IS O. K'D

Of the three, the library transfer commanded the major part of attention last night. It was gone over several months ago when the subject of the library transfer was first introduced at a meeting of council. A resolution was passed declaring council's intention to consent to the transfer.

The matter had been thoroly explained to members of the board of education by H. S. Hershberg, state librarian, Columbus, and the proposition had unanimously received the endorsement of the board members. Again, it was submitted to the board of library trustees and was endorsed by them also. All that then remained necessary for the transfer to be made was the approval of city council.

FIRST READING IN JULY

Thus, an ordinance providing for the transfer was given its first reading on July 10, after which a motion that it take its regular course was made and passed. From then until last night, nothing further had been done concerning it.

The ordinance was given its second reading, after which Councilman Adolph Sahling arose and declared himself still in favor of the transfer. "I was in favor of the matter when it was first proposed," he declared, "believing that by such a transfer the library could be operated to its full value." He continued to explain that under the power of the library trustees of the city school district a tax levy could be made for money needed, whereas the city council was powerless to levy such a tax. Councilman Sahling concluded by moving that the ordinance be given its third reading.

TO EMBODY NEW CLAUSE

A third reading was given the bill and another suggestion was made—that it would be advisable to insert a clause providing the trustees were found to be not conducting it in an economical manner. Council then recessed to allow H. S. Lybarger, city solicitor, to include a clause of this kind in the original ordinance.

RESOLUTION PASSED

But the solicitor desired more time to incorporate a satisfactory clause into the bill, so a resolution declaring it the council's intention to consent to the transfer was given the necessary three readings and passed, to show that definite action had been taken.

The fact that to transfer the library would turn more money into the city treasury for general purposes is admitted by council and was one important factor in the vote on the resolution. The council knows now that the city will not have as much to operate on next year as they had this, and this fact, more than anything else, caused them to sanction the proposal of State Librarian Hershberg.

TO TRANSFER IT BACK

It is the general opinion of council, however, that when the time comes that the city has money enough to properly maintain this public institution it

Davis Still Rides Vic's Horse in Pursuit of Donahey's Goat

Animals Play Important Role in Gubernatorial Race; Birds and Squirrels Are Brot into the Controversy

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23—Asserting that the "easiest argument against an embarrassing fact which one is loath to admit is to call it a lie," Harry L. Davis, former governor and Republican candidate against Gov. A. . Donahey at the fall election, today came to the front once more with an exchange of views with his opponent in regard to the alleged loan of a riding horse to Gov. Donahey by T. D. Vancamp, of Columbus.

"After several days conference with his advisers, he (Gov. Donahey) now grudgingly grants the correctness of our charge that he received a valuable gift from one T. D. Vancamp, of Columbus," Davis says in a formal statement. "But naively, he argues he only borrowed. Gift horse or loan horse, we have proved his acceptance of it. The fact remains he had it in use and possession for nine months while governor.

"Mr. Donahey carefully omits, however, to mention Mr. Vancamp's identity. The public is entitled to know that Mr. Vancamp is a road contractor, that he has received thousands of dollars from the state under Donahey, and what is more, that he is the person whom Donahey permitted to sell to the state a brick plant, for $35,000 after the Donahey administration had refused to pay $28,000 for it to the original owners from whom Vancamp then bought it for $20,000.

"Donahey again talks about lying in connection with this transaction, as he did about the riding horse. If there is falsehood in this, I demand that he prove it now.

"Donahey cannot expect to divert attention from his receipt of valuable gifts from contractors by talking about birds and squirrels which may have been given to members of his family by private citizens who have no selfish motives like a contractor getting big contracts from the state.

"In the light of all this, it is more easily understood why he has decided to keep off the stump and why he shows such a marked disinclination to face the public."

Coolidge, Worried Over Prospects in West, May Yet Take to the Stump

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — Six weeks from today the greatest army of American voters ever assembled will march to the polls to cast the largest vote in the nation's history and a vote which, despite its enormity, may still prove indecisive and throw the election of the next president of the United States into the house of representatives.

Significant of the big Republican push now being organized, and indicative, too, of the dissatisfaction which many Republicans feel over the situation in the west, were persistent reports today that President Coolidge is seriously contemplating leaving Washington for at least "several" speeches in selected spots west of the Alleghenies.

The Republican campaign managers are divided upon the advisability of this move. Most of them have advised the president it will not be necessary for him to leave the capital, but Mr. Coolidge is said to be not entirely satisfied with their judgment in this matter and he believes he can help the cause along by appearing in person before some mid-western audiences. No final decision has yet been reached but it was said today to be likely that Indiana and Missouri will see the president in the next six weeks. Both are considered doubtful states.

Republican leaders are plainly somewhat perturbed over the situation in a number of western states and particularly with reports drifting into Washington the last few days which give Senator LaFollette six and possibly seven western states. These are Wisconsin, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Montana and Nebraska where the progressive nominee is conceded to have considerable strength and the Republican faction is embarrassed by final vows.

If LaFollette should carry the seven states named it would mean 59 electoral votes and should Davis carry the solid south and the border states—the minimum claimed for him by Democratic managers—it would bring the vote in the electoral college down to such a fine point that the loss of one or two normal Republican states would result in a deadlock and a decision in the house.

CANAL ROAD IS NEARING COMPLETION

S. M. Snyder Tells Rotarians New Road Will Probably Be Ready Sometime in October

TWO CREWS AT WORK

When Complete It Will Reduce Distance to Columbus by Eighteen Miles

With two and a half miles of the Trinway-Frazeysburg tow-path road ready for use at the present time indications are that the remaining two miles will be opened to traffic before the month of October is over, Seth M. Snyder declared before the Rotary club Tuesday noon.

Snyder is among the many local business men who have been actively engaged in getting the road built. Some time ago funds were solicited in this county, and among neighboring vicinities served by the road, to aid in opening it up. Sufficient money remains to pay for the completion of the road, Snyder said.

The road follows the old Ohio canal bed, and is being built where the tow-path formerly ran. When finished it will make it possible for autoists to cut off about 18 miles distance between here and Columbus. In wet, winter weather the road will not be exactly the best, as it is being built at the present, it is said, but plans are to have the road improved as soon as possible. The main idea at this time is to establish the road.

As it is built at the present time, the road is 26 feet wide. Two crews of workmen are employed on the remaining two miles of the road to be built.

Dr. W. B. Winters, pastor of Grace M .E. church, thanked the Rotarians for the part they had taken in entertaining the ministers gathered here last week for the North East Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Walter Nicholas of New Philadelphia was introduced by F. D. Johns, and he gave a talk on the benefits of an automobile club associated with the Ohio State Automobile Association. He told of the work being done by the organization in Tuscarawas co, and boosted a similar association which is being organized here.

Harry B. Hunt, a former president of the local Rotary club, was called upon for a speech on the subject, "How it Feels to Be Past President of the Rotary club.

Says $1,565 Was Paid Out "Fraudulently" on County Bridge Contract

Also Seeks Injunction to Restrain Board of Commissioners from Further Payment to Newark Contractor—Work Done by Force Account Was Not Carried Out As Required by Law, County Prosecutor Contends

Action to restrain Val Fortune, Ralph F. McConnell and Charles Walker, county commissioners of Coshocton-co, from allowing bills presented by George W. Lane, of Newark, for the construction of Bridge 3 on Road 477 in Linton-tp, and for the part construction of Bridge 3 on Road 124 in Lafayette-tp, and to recover the sum of $1,565.24, said to have been "paid falsely, fraudulently and without color or right of law," to Lane, was started in common pleas court today by Prosecuting Attorney Joseph B. Shepler.

A petition covering nine typewritten pages was filed with the clerk of courts shortly after noon. Charges of "padding" the payroll are made against Lane.

The trouble arises thru the commissioners' decision to have the work done by force account and not proceeding according to law, Shepler says.

According to Shepler, the commissioners have two ways by which they may order an improvement made. If it is extremely necessary that an improvement be made at once, then they can do away with the required publishing of notices, in a daily paper, of the time and place sealed proposals for the improvement will be received, lease machinery, material, etc., appoint a foreman, inform him that the cost is not to exceed a certain estimate, and begin work immediately.

The other way is to first decide to make the improvement, next publish notice that sealed bids will be received, and then after the required two weeks' publishing, award the contract to the lowest bidder.

The bridges, one located near Plainfield and the other near West Lafayette, were washed out by a flood on June 12, last.

On June 16, the petition states, A. M. Fisher, county surveyor, submitted specifications and estimates for the repair of the two bridges to the commissioners. They were approved by that body on June 13. Plans for both structures were also submitted to the board on June 16 and were approved by the commissioners the following day.

This entry was placed in the commissioners journal:

"An emergency having arisen because of the recent floods, it was moved by Fortune and seconded by Walker that Bridge 3 on Road 124 in Lafayette-tp, and Bridge 3 on Road 477 in Linton-tp be replaced by force account with George W. Lane as foreman. Total cost of both bridges complete being $4,537. If two end posts are found and can be used on Bridge 3 on Road 477, and if posts cannot be used, total cost complete not to exceed $4,627.

"Vote——
"Fortune—Aye
"Walker—Aye
"McConnell—Aye."

On June 16, continues the petition, the commissioners entered into a verbal agreement with George W. Lane of Newark, by which Lane was to construct and repair the bridges and perform all the work incident thereto, to furnish labor, teams and all material, equipment and supplies. For these services the commissioners were to pay Lane not to exceed the sum of $4,627.

Up to this time, Lane has finished the bridge in Lafayette-tp and has partly constructed the one near Plainfield.

The prosecuting attorney sets out the following reasons why work should not be continued and more bills should not be paid:

The plans, estimates and specifications were not prepared in accordance with the law; they were

PLANS ARE COMPLETE FOR FALL OPENING THURSDAY

With the exception of the arrangement of a few minor details, all plans for the 1924 Fall Opening of the Coshocton retail stores affiliated with the Coshocton Business Men's Association, were complete Tuesday.

The display Thursday evening, which is the feature of the opening, while popularly known as a "style show," can not literally be classed that way, the merchants point out.

All of the stores are to be open that evening from seven until 9:30 o'clock. While they will display to the best advantage their fall line of goods, the merchants point out that they are also affording the people of the town an opportunity to become acquainted with new stores, new departments in old stores, new lines of goods, and new clerks.

The merchants have agreed that nothing at all is to be sold. The working force of the stores will be on hand, but instead of handling goods, it will be their duty to entertain visitors. They will call their attention to displays arranged especially for this one evening, show them thru every department of the store, and extend every other courtesy.

Street window displays are to be a big feature of the evening. The Business Men's Association is offering prizes of $15, $10 and $5 respectively for the first three best decorated and arranged windows, regardless of the kind of goods on display. In the past, similar prizes have generally gone to dry goods, clothing or shoe stores, but it is stated that electrical shops, sporting good stores, drug stores, jewelry stores, and any number of other stores also have a wealth of material to work

ALLEN STILL AT LARGE; SHOOTING VICTIM BETTER

Charles Allen, colored, Newcomerstown, was still at large Tuesday and is being sought by Newcomerstown police in connection with the shooting scrape which took place in the colored community hall, Cloway, Newcomer-town, last Saturday night.

A charge of shooting with intent to wound and maim was filed in Mayor M. L. Oliver's court against Allen.

Mrs R. H. Hill, of Newcomerstown, colored, was slightly improved at the City hospital Tuesday, where she is suffering from a bullet wound in her abdomen as a result of the shooting affair. She is said to have been shot by Allen with his .38 calibre revolver. She was somewhat improved today.

Mrs Hill's mother, Mrs. Rose Collins, aged 70, also of Newcomerstown was grazed by the same bullet before it entered the former's body. She was not badly hurt.

The shooting affair is said to have resulted following the attempt to evict Mrs. Hill from the dance floor by Allen, who acted as floor man at all dances in that hall. Alleged improper dancing by the woman, is said to have caused the floor man to ask the woman to leave the hall. The woman refused to go out. It was said that loud talking followed and soon catsup bottles and mustard pots started to fly in the air, thrown by some of the negroes near the lunch stand.

Officer J. F. Fisher said he heard that one negro had advanced toward Allen with a knife when the latter had ordered the woman to leave the hall and that Allen then opened fire. This, of course, he could not verify, the officer said. If that had been the case, the officer said, probably the bullet fired by Allen

NEIL O'BRIEN MINSTRELS

Keeping apace or just a little ahead of the times is the proposition that confronts Neil O'Brien, owner and producer of the Neil O'Brien Minstrels who make their annual appearance at the Sixth Street Theatre, Friday, September 26th.

This year's production and performance show how well he has succeeded, the perfect blending of the brilliant colors in costumes and scenery formerly thot to be impossible with an organization of this type making it an equal to any of the New York Revues, at the same time keeping all the gags and comedy of the traditional and well liked minstrel entertainment.

Among the new features this season will be found Tex Hendrix, a character artist of international reputation, recently returned from a visit to the different European countries where he made a study of the different dances. Being specially interested in the Spanish dances Mr. Hendrix will present his conception of the dances of that nationality but being somewhat handicapped by the fact that most national dances are executed by members of the feminine sex, he will assume that character and will wear dresses designed by dressmakers in Spain. He will be assisted in this act by "Sugarfoot" Gaffney and the entire company. Other features in the second part of the program will be a one act playlet entitled "Pressing Business." Yodling selections by the McCoys (Maxine and Scotty) a new monologue by Billy Beard and a one act skit written by Neil O'Brien and in which that famous comedian will personally appear.

Life Is Worth While
if old folks are well

To be well, avoid chronic constipation. The laxative for old people is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

IT would be of great benefit to elderly people if they realized that all their complaints are aggravated by constipation, as constipation is a form of congestion that affects the brain, nervous and muscular systems.

Headaches develop, aches and pains become worse, and rheumatism more painful. If you keep your intestines free from poisons you will find yourself happier and without those disorders usually associated with advancing age.

It is a mistake for old people to take strong cathartic pills, as they are seldom necessary and their repeated use requires larger and larger doses. Likewise the taking of "candy cathartics" is bad, as many of these contain a coal-tar drug that often causes skin eruptions; and if you have taken salt waters you know how dry and weak you felt afterwards.

The fact is elderly people need only a mild, simple laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is gentle in action and free from griping, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. Use it awhile and you will soon be able to dispense with medicines of all kinds.

More elderly people use Syrup Pepsin than any other laxative, and Mrs. Wesley Davis, 819 26th St., So. Bellingham, Wash., and Mr. A. R. MacLellan, 1209 Sixth St., N. E., Washington, D. C., believe it has added many healthy years to their lives. Get a bottle at a nearby drug store and try a spoonful the next time you feel constipated, have a headache, biliousness, flatulence, dyspepsia, night cramps, or in any other way feel out of sorts as a result of not having had proper elimination.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not an experiment with old folks, as it has been on the market over 30 years and is today the largest selling laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being sold annually. Buy it with the understanding that it will do as we state or your money will be promptly refunded.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

Those are the odds you fight in the battle against Pyorrhea. Four out of every five over 40—as well as thousands younger, too—are afflicted with this sinister disease. Will you be a victim?

Protect your gums and save your teeth

Just as a ship needs the closest attention under the water-line, so do your teeth under the gum-line. If the gums shrink, serious dangers result.

The teeth are loosened. They are exposed to tooth-base decay. The gums themselves become tender and bleed easily. They form sacs which become the doorways of organic disease for the whole system. They often disfigure the mouth as they recede.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. Forhan's is safe, efficient and pleasant-tasting. It preserves gum health, corrects tender gum spots, hardens gum tissues so they will offer proper support to the teeth, and keeps your mouth fresh and healthy.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

BLADDER AND LIVER

Complete Relief From Bladder and Liver Troubles Guaranteed—Or No Cost

There are thousands of persons who suffer with painful or too frequent urination, backaches, tired feeling, indigestion, fullness, headaches, neuritis, rheumatic twinges, etc., who, if they knew the real cause of their ailments, could often get complete relief practically over-night. For they simply forget that the kidneys and bladder are the filters of the body, throwing out all sorts of poisons through the urine. When these organs are working badly, the poisons back up into the system and cause all sorts of trouble. The liver, too, gets rid of waste through the bile, and when it is out of order bile poisoning brings numerous ills.

To get right to the affected organs, a remarkable oil perfected by a famous Dutch chemist and taken internally, has been recommended for many years. Thousands have found it to heal and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver to normal functioning with amazing quickness. Its only drawback has been its disagreeable taste, but this has at last been entirely overcome by putting it up in capsule form, absolutely tasteless. Ask the druggist for Red Mill Haarlem Oil, which is the genuine oil imported direct from Holland, in capsules. Costs only 50 cents, and sold under an absolute money-back guarantee. Ask these druggists: G. P. Curry, Page & Lorenz, Siegrist & Williams, Wimmer & Arnold Drug Co.

not approved by the county commissioners, auditor or surveyor in accordance with law; no public notice was given in any paper as to when and where sealed proposals would be received; plans and estimates were not submitted to the prosecuting attorney for his approval; the improvements were not assented to at a regular or special session of the board: plans, estimates and specifications were not entered in the minutes of their proceedings by the auditor; Road 477 is an inter-county highway, and plans for the bridge on this road were not submitted to the state highway director, as they should have been, for his approval; the county auditor did not file or record a certificate that the money required for the payment of such obligation was in the treasury to the credit of the fund from which it was to be drawn.

On these allegations, Prosecutor Shepler bases his contention that the alleged contract was invalid.

N oestimates fo the work done were filed with the county auditor by Lane, according to the plaintiff's petition. But on August 13 he filed a pay roll, approved by County Surveyor Fisher, which set out the amount due, as wages for the men he had employed from July 21 to August 9, inclusive The amount was $927.80. On the same day he filed another payroll calling for $398, for the men's wages from July 28 to August 9, inclusive, and a statement for the lumber, cement and gravel used. The amount of the latter was $239 44. This also had been approved by Fisher.

At a meeting shortly after these were filed, the commissioners allowed the two pay rolls and statement and ordered the auditor to make out warrants for the amounts named.

Further allegations of "padding" the payroll are brot against Lane by the prosecutor. That is, it is charged the payroll was false and fraudulent in that none o fthe men whose names appeared on the payroll were employed at the rate per hour set forth in the bill submitted by Lane. For instance, Shepler claims that men who received 95 cents per hour were marked as getting $1.25 per hour, those getting only 40 cents per hour were represented to be getting 65 cents, etc. In other words, Lane was making about 25 cents per hour on each man, and, in some cases, as high as 60 cents per hour, all of which was clearly "velvet" the prosecutor avers.

Another charge is that the actual cost price of the material used in the construction of the bridges was much lower than the amount appearing on the statements presented by Lane at the auditor's office. One example of this, Shepler claims, is shown in the bill for steel. Eight cents per pound is asked for steel that cost Lane less than four cents, Shepler says. A similar graft in the charge for other materials is suspected. All of the pay rolls and statement were approved by County Engineer Fisher, Shepler says.

On September 10 another payroll calling for $693 56, another for $517.50 and a statement for $743 92 were left with the auditor Payment of these was upheld at the order of Prosecutor Shepler, who had then detected the illegality and had started his investigation. This investigation lasted for over two weeks, in which time the prosecutor gathered all the evidence possible.

Making out a false pay roll is a crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, according to Attorney Shepler.

Lane, however, does not deny that he "padded" the payroll. When called into the prosecutor's office one day last week he admitted having done so, declaring that he "had to make a profit some way," Shepler said. Lane contended that it was perfectly legal for him to use just as much money as he wished, just so long as he didn't go over the limit, $4,627.

This is one point that attention should be paid to, when work is being done by force account, Shepler explained. The foreman is supposed to keep the cost down to less than a certain amount, but it is easy to spend more than is necessary and still keep within the restricted amount. Another objection is that the foreman is required to give no bond, as contractors awarded a contract by the most common method are forced to do. The latter must give bond for the faithful performance of his contract, whereas, if the foreman employed at work done by force account quits or expends too much money, the commissioners have no recourse.

The prosecutor explained, however, that he is not entirely averse to force accounts. When public necessity exists and demands immediate action, the force account method is the only practicable one. But the law must be complied with, he said.

Lane did not start work on either of the bridges until July 21, more than a month after the verbal agreement had been made, and more than time enough for the notices to have been filed, the bids received and the contract awarded. He told Prosecutor Shepler that all the building equipment was shipped from Newark in plenty of time it was "slow in coming."

The whole amount paid out to Lane has been asked for in Shepler's petition This was done on the ground that money paid out under an illegal contract is unlawfully paid out.

A number of other force account improvements over the county have been ordered stopped by Shepler.

ELYRIA—City officials have received a letter from the state board of health denying an extension of time after July 28, 1925, on its order directing the city to construct a disposal plant as a means to ultimately eliminate the pollution of Black river. The state board of health censured the city for its repeated delays, saying the matter has been up nineteen years, with the city not even making an appropriation for the improvement

The Government's Murderer

WHETHER the death penalty is good or bad for society is far from universal settlement. But the increase of scientific knowledge will inevitably lead us to the position of considering crime a symptom of disease. Such a point of view is, of course, not compatible with the death penalty, tho a long period of scientific research and public education may have to pass before we settle in any such rational position.

Meanwhile, if we must put up with the odious practice, the executioner's job, like jury duty, might be made a civic duty. Judges and jury could then see to the bitter end the majesty of the law at work. They could share the feelings of John Ellis, England's famous hangman, who recently attempted to commit suicide as a result of brooding over the fact that he had sent to their doom more condemned murderers than any other man.

Canada's Resources

PUBLICATION of the Canadian geological survey's estimate that the Dominion's coal reserve amounts to more than a trillion tons shows that the north country is destined to become a great manufacturing nation. England owes her modern greatness, it has been said, to the early development of her coal. It was coal that made Germany a great industrial country, and it has been coal, more than anything else, that has led to the establishment of manufactures in the United States. The countries which have had coal have developed manufactures; those which have lacked it have not done so.

Canada's agriculture, fur trade, fisheries and mines are commonly regarded as her greatest resources. But her manufacturing business is growing and promises to become more and more important. In addition to her vast coal deposits the Dominion has eighteen million horsepower of undeveloped waterpower, and this will also count heavily in transforming her into a predominantly manufacturing country.

England has comparatively little waterpower and is using up her coal resources much more rapidly than most other countries are consuming theirs. It would not be surprising if eventually Canada will become the seat of many English manufacturing enterprises. Already 250 British industries have established branch factories in the Dominion. Eight hundred American companies have established branch plants in Canada, not only for the sake of capturing the Canadian trade, but because thru their Canadian subsidiaries they can trade with the whole British Empire to greater advantage than is possible thru their establishments in the United States.

The annual production of Canadian manufacturing industries has shown a steady increase in late years and now amounts to $400 per capita, while the country's exports equal $150 per capita and are said to be the highest of any country in the world.

More and more Canada is going to be a commercial rival of the United States.

The League Breaks New Ground

AN eight-page document at Geneva is reported to lay the foundations of a new plan for world peace. No text has been cabled to this country; no text, in fact, has been agreed on: but tho there is little to steer by save the rough summary of a new treaty, it is clear that the fifth Assembly of the League has gained a point; it is defining what it means by an aggressor nation.

The treaty comes from a subcommittee of 12 members representing France, England, Italy, the Little Entente states and several neutrals. It insists upon no hard and fast method of arbitration for international justice: it points out, in fact, the three alternate methods: trial by the permanent court, trial by the Council of the League or trial by any special council of League, or by any special court of arbitration which the parties concerned may designate. With that said, the treaty proceeds to define an aggressor as any signatory state which fails to submit its dispute, or, having submitted it, fails to carry out the awards of its jury and thereby imperils the world's peace.

What sanctions can and should be applied against such an aggressor is a question to be met and settled on its own ground, but merely to have the aggressor defined is a long step toward an ordered peace. It is a long step because no such definition has existed in the past and because it supplies a perfectly measurable means of indicting an aggressor rather than leaving the decision in a maze of arguments and counter arguments about national "rights."

As the naval ratio established at the arms conference in Washington was a step toward disarmament because it gave the world a new yardstick, so this treaty at Geneva brings a new and useful instrument into international law. The fifth Assembly of the League of Nations, for whose achievements bright prophecies were made, is living up to promise.

LAWRENCE'S LETTER

Montana Said to Have Deserted Her Two Well-Known Solons —Coolidge Has Better than Even Chance to Carry State

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 23—Several surprises are in store for the investigator of things political in Montana.

First, Senator Thomas F. Walsh, Democrat, of Teapot Dome fame, has a hard fight for re-election.

Second, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, vice presidential nominee with LaFollette, hasn't created much of a stir in his home state. His selection on the third party ticket has caused resentment among the Democrats because he deserted the party.

Third, President Coolidge has better than an even chance to carry this state by about 5 to 10,000 plurality.

Just why should a man like Senator Walsh have a hard time winning re-election? This question is a natural one and even Montana [illegible] in politics [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of course [illegible] Mr. Walsh. Among his own followers are some who think he should have [illegible] the [illegible] at the Madison Square Garden convention [illegible] that made Senator Walsh [illegible] this year — the Teapot Dome [illegible] doesn't seem to be talked about. Senator Wheeler's connection with the investigation of Attorney General Daugherty really excited more attention at the time.

Montana finds herself with an improved agricultural situation which means votes for Coolidge. After a drought of several years Montana will produce this year fifty million bushels of wheat and the farmers will have for sale actual farm products, exclusive of their own feeding and seeding operations, which may net them about $100,000,000. The yield in the Billings sugar beet district for instance is exceptional. The bean crop is phenomenal while in most sections of the state the yield of hay, oats and barley is very good.

So after years of depression, Montana has been lifted to an atmosphere of hope and confidence once more. Under such circumstances there is no passion for a change. The state political situation of course is different. The opposition to the re-election of Governor Joseph Dixon, Republican is so intense that his defeat would cause no surprise. The Democrats are active in their state fight but the national ticket seems somewhat neglected here. This was McAdoo country. The Democratic national organization appears hardly to be functioning with respect to Montana, nor does it appear that the Democratic national organization has even gotten started as far as the entire northwest is concerned. This year of all years it was essential for the national managers to pay attention to western Democracy for most of the delegations from these states came home disappointed that McAdoo wasn't nominated.

The McAdoo men are not sulking but they cannot understand why the national organization persists in ignoring them and doesn't even ask their aid.

There may be a change when William Gibbs McAdoo returns from Europe for the west has a good deal of faith in him, and if he gives the signal to his followers they will rise to help the national ticket. It would seem to be poor Democratic strategy to ignore a faction so strong at the Madison Square Garden convention. But this is only one of a number of things which indicate that the Democrats not only are poorly organized this year but that they do not seem to have the money to wage an effective campaign.

The Republicans have been busy for several weeks. Their candidate for United States senator against Mr. Walsh, namely Frank Lindermman has never been much of a factor in politics but if the Coolidge ticket should run strong, he may be swept in as Senator Walsh is swept out. It is a close race for senator and a mixed situation too. Senator Wheeler of Montana, who has been one of Senator Walsh's political supporters for many years, has been lauded to the skies by Mr. Walsh. The latter has not yet hammered away at the LaFollette and Wheeler ticket, which some of his friends think he must do if he is to recover many Democratic votes due to be cast for LaFollette. Senator Wheeler's political life in Montana may be said to be ended. He never will win in a Democratic party again and the general impression is that he has permanently cast his fortunes with the radicals and third party in America.

In Montana the radical vote has usually been in the Democratic party. The LaFollette ticket would have gotten the same big vote irrespective of whether Wheeler had been named. The third party will take more from the Democrats than the Republicans in this state, which is one of the reasons why the victory of President Coolidge by a plurality seems at this writing almost a certainty.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

BY R. T. BULKELEY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 22—For the first time in the recollection of living man Yale University seems in position to send one of its professors into the chair of the Governor of Connecticut. Hiram Bingham, a professor who is enjoying a year's leave of absence, has the Republican nomination for that office, and usually in Connecticut the Republican ticket wins. Professor Bingham is Lieutenant-Governor of Connecticut, having in that capacity presided over the Connecticut State Senate in its session of 1923.

The professor in politics is not an unusual thing in Connecticut. C. M. Bakewell, a Yale colleague of Professor Bingham, has been serving with distinction as a Senator from one of the New Haven district, winning his honor in a district supposedly strongly Democratic after running as a Republican against a Labor leader. The combination of Bakewell and Bingham was a strong one at Hartford, where the capitol is located. Both men were up and doing during the legislative session. But out of that session, while Professor Bingham won the nomination for Governor, Professor Bakewell failed to carry his party primary and is retired temporarily. There has been strong talk of running him for Mayor here, tho the election is a year distant.

Another professor who has been taking an active part in the State's affairs is Harry M. Ayers, of Columbia University, New York. Sitting as a member for Westport, home of a live colony of writers, artists and stage folk, Professor Ayers has been a Democratic leader. He had only a bare minority to work with in the Legislature, but he made his mark there and Democrats have been ready to elevate him further if he only said the word. There was a chance recently that the State election of this Fall might see Yale vs. Columbia fighting it out at the polls. But the Democratic party has just failed of nominating Professor Ayers, of Columbia, to battle against Professor Bingham, of Yale, in the campaign of 1924. But such a battle seems likely to take place in the not distant future, as college teachers are getting more and more active in politics.

Yale University is governed by a board called the Corporation of Yale University. On this board the Governor and the Lieutenant-Governor are ex officio members. If Professor Bingham is elected Governor he will simply be continuing his term as member of the Corporation, which he has held for two years. And chances are that after a time Yale graduates will see fit to name Professor Bingham as a real member of the Corporation, for the graduates themselves have the say when it comes to naming regular members of that governing body. Vance McCormick, of Harrisburg, Pa., and William Howard Taft, of Washington, D. C., are among those members of the Corporation who have seen political life to a great extent.

Meanwhile local interest is fairly divided between the campaign now getting into swing and that more important campaign—according to New Haveners—which the Yale football team is about to engage upon. Yale will accumulate a gross of almost $1,050,000 out of football in New Haven, to judge from the way applications for seats at football games in the bowl are pouring in. New Haven has always raged for a larger share of seats, but with the whole country at large almost as eager the chances have been slim. This year, with prices on the increase, the demand here is larger than ever before. The chances of the team are reported to be good, and that justifies New Haven in seeking tickets. At any rate a record crowd is sure to be cared for in the bowl, and it appears that a so-called "minor game" this year may get out a crowd that a few years ago would have been big for a "big game."

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

ON THE ATLANTIC, Sept. 23.—A smooth as glass sea and the Leviathan rides without a tremor. One must look out a porthole to realize she is moving. It is perhaps the most luxuriously equipped vessel in trans-Atlantic service.

All the servants are American and after 18 days of "parley-vooing it was pleasant to hear a cabin boy's Bowery accent. He is a "dese" and "doze" lad who speaks of the French as "frogs" and the English as "limeys." Our stateroom is on E. Deck—quite aways down in the bowls of the ship.

There are two comfortable beds with reading table and lamps and carafes of icewater in brackets within reach. A dressing table with triple mirrors, two clothes closets, one of which has a safe for valuables, if any, a washstand with hot and cold water and a telephone connecting with every office and a stateroom on board.

There is a comfortable divan, a cut-glass ceiling light, two electric fans, three comfortable chairs. The bath is comfortable and commodious and has a shower attachment. For the money it offers more than I have received on other ships, but I am not as yet prepared to say it equals the British in service.

The British are skilled in the art of efficient service and that to the traveler means more sometimes than sumptuous furnishings. My reason for going into such details is that American ships face the handicap of prohibition on high seas.

As long as they offer first class comforts it seems to me Americans should patronize them. Indeed it strikes me as a rather patriotic thing to do when possible.

Fancy the Prince of Wales crossing on an American ship. Yet high officials in America go on British and French boats.

And for fear I might be accused of ballyhooing for a steamship line I might add that I did not take advantage of the minimum rate usually offered writers, but paid for the full fare demanded of the casual passenger.

The promenade deck today revealed a slice of Broadway. Louis Mann with the eternal widest winged collar in captivity was among the first I greeted. He is returning to take up his usual stand under the canopy of the Astor Hotel before beginning a theatrical engagement.

And along in two steamer chairs were Tom Shipp and his young bride, who have been honeymooning on the continent for two months. Tom married one of the beautiful Neidig twins of South Dakota. He was all flossed up in tweeds.

It was my luck before leaving Paris to spring what ball players call a "charley horse." Too much strolling along the boulevards strained a tendon in the leg. Or should say a "limb" this season? Constant deck walking is denied me, but occasionally I hobble up to the promenade with a heavy cane. A strained tendon and strained purse are not comfortable but Paris is worth it.

It has always been comforting to reach my age and be referred to as rather spry. So it was disconcerting when an old lady seeing me limp along offered me her chair. I suppose the next thing my wife will be saying, "Lean on me, grandpa."

And, by the way, we are not listed among the passengers. But there is a "Mrs. Strong and Infant" and I wonder if they mean us.

There is also listed The Rev. J. F. McIntyre. When I called at the purser's office for mail or telegrams he inquired "Are you Rev McIntyre?" and then he looked at my purple shirt and blushed a rosy red.

Rea Expected to Pitch First of Post-Season Series with New Phila.

The opening game of the Coshocton-New Philadelphia baseball series will start at Lake Park Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Business Manager Ringer announced Tuesday.

A stiff argument between the Coshocton managers and the New Philadelphia supporters as to which town has the better club led to the post-season series.

The New Philadelphians boasts of the hardest hitting team in the league. The Noakers finished the season in second place, close on the heels of the leading Afefas.

The Noakers have a well balanced team both in the field and at bat. They appear to have the edge on the Regs in some departments.

New Philadelphia possesses one of the best pitching staffs in the league. They can rely on "Lefty" Gantz, "Lefty" Price, Glenn Shinn and Carl Guess. Gantz has been pitching wonderful baseball in the two games he worked. He beat Cambridge and Zanesville at New Philadelphia in the last two games at Tuscora Park.

Joe Agler, of the Noakers, has been picked as one of the best intial sackers in the league. Joe can hit as well as he can field. Jimmy Edwards, the keystone sacker, has been going strong this season at New Phila. Beckwith is back with the Noakers and has strengthened the short field. Davis is an able man at the hot corner. "Hump" Geary protects home plate well and is a slugger. Cummings, Bates and Heintzelman will guard the outfield here Sunday for the visitors. All are hard hitters.

Locally "Rabbit" Cain and Leo Stiff are expected to shine at bat and on the diamond. Cain hits well and is a capable hot corner attendant. Stiff has been exceptionally good around first base and every fan here knows he can hit.

There is not a better combination in the league than Daugherty, Witt and E. Cain on the infield. All are small men but are mighty. Each will get his share of hits.

Pete Hildebrand, touted as the best receiver in the league, will be on the job Sunday. Harry Storch is expected to be back in the lineup Sunday. If he is unable to play, there will be another outfielder in his place that is equally as fast as Harry, Business Manager Ringer said today. Homer Cain will romp left garden and Vance Greber, right field. Both Cain and Greber are hard hitters and fast fielders.

The Regulars are not as well fortified in pitching as New Philadelphia. Orve Rea will probably do the bulk of the pitching against the Noakers. Rea has been picked by more than one as the best hurler in the league. His pitching in recent games has demonstrated this. Ryan and Robertson may get a chance to work in this short series.

Orve Rea will likely oppose "Lefty" Gantz here in the opening game. The second game of the series will be played at Tuscora Park, New Phila.

Tickets for the opening game will go on sale here this evening. New Philadelphia has sent word here to reserve her fans a section of the grandstand.

Each manager is confident of victory.

Here is the probable battery for Sunday's game:

Noakers—Gantz and Geary.
Coshocton—Rea and Hildebrand.

Giants Reach Crucial Point; Washington Is in Fairly Safe Place

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The three leading teams in each major league today ranked as follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

	Won	Lost	Pct	play yet to
New York	89	59	601	6
Brooklyn	90	60	600	4
Pittsburgh	86	59	593	8

AMERICAN LEAGUE

	Won	Lost	Pct	yet to play
Washington	88	60	595	6
New York	86	62	581	6
Detroit	83	67	553	4

With Frank Frisch, star second baseman and captain, and Heinie Groh, star at the third sack, on the bench for repairs, the New York Giants today faced the hardest fight imaginable in their effort to win a fourth consecutive National League pennant.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, up and coming with gathering speed, and a well known jinx of the season to the Giant cause, furnishes the opposition and if they win two of the games in the series starting at the Polo Grounds it is virtually conceded the pennant race is over so far as the Giants are concerned.

John J. McGraw, graying manager of the Giants, shrewd in strategy, gained a little time for breathing yesterday when he exercised the right of the home club and announced postponement of the first game with the Pirates because of wet grounds. Practically the same amount of moisture descended on the Brooklyn playing field, but the Dodgers now in second place, one point to the rear of the Giants went out and defeated the Cubs, 2 to 1.

The Pirates were a little peevish over the fact that a little rain gave McGraw the excuse for postponing the game. Both Giants and Pirates had dates for Thursday. On that date the Pirates had hoped to engage what they considered a cinch—the Chicago Cubs—in a postponed game. That contest now must be played as part of a double header.

The Pirates have slightly the best of the schedule, inasmuch as they are carded for eight more contests, three of which are with the Giants and five with the Cubs. The Giants have six remaining contests. The Dodgers finish up in four more starts.

If the Giants break even in their remaining games, the Dodgers win three and the Pirates lose only two, Brooklyn would be pennant winner, with the Giants in second place and the Pirates in third.

If the Giants win four out of six, it would be necessary for the Pirates to win seven of their eight provided Brooklyn won only two in order to top the list.

By taking five of their six games the Giants can win the pennant, providing the Pirates lost one.

The American League race as a tight affair, is not at the point of the National. The Washington Senators won yesterday, maintaining their lead of two games over the Yankees, who also won.

The Senators can now win out if they break even in their six remaining games and the Yankees lose two.

The local basketball tosser was one of the best players ever graduated from the Coshocton public schools.

Mrs. Renner to Show Prize Dog at County Fair

Mrs. Donald Renner, 170½ Main street boulevard, Alliance, and formerly of this city, is making a successful tour of a number of this season's best shows, with a prize-winning German police dog owned by her.

The dog, Bismark Von Froelich, is fifteen months of age, and recently won two firsts and a trophy for the best German shepherd at the Ravenna, Portage-co. show. Mrs. Renner will have the dog at the show at the Coshocton-co fair, October 7 to 10.

SPRING CANYON, Utah, Sept. 22.—Little hope was entertained early today for five men entombed by an explosion last night in the mine of the Carbon Fuel Co. Rescue crews expressed doubt that the men would be reached alive.

The five entombed are machine men who entered the mine yesterday afternoon to block out work for the miners today. There was no regular operation of the mine yesterday except for the work of machine men. What caused the explosion has not been determined.

Many Changes Appear in Line-up of Ohio's College Grid Squads

(By STANLEY D. KOCH)

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23.—Battered and torn thru a series of defeats and catastrophies that have extended over a period of years, Oberlin's football team opens the Ohio conference 1924 season against Hiram on the Congregationalists' own field Saturday with the knowledge that the result of the game will tell the story of the Red and Gold season.

It has been only within the last five or six years that the chant of Oberlin, champions of Ohio, has been silent. Before that time, the old elevens of gray, Pyle and others, enjoyed a regular Saturday afternoon pastime of walloping other Ohio conference teams. But in the last half dozen years, such has not been the case. There have been a few endeavors to recall the old time memory—one in which the Oberlin eleven took a 7-6 game from Ohio State, the year the Buckeyes were runners up in the western conference race—but mostly, defeat has been its share.

Last year, the doughty Hiram eleven grabbed a 7-6 victory from the Congregationalists and the season's close showed only three conference wins for Stalling's team. That, however, was last year.

The 1924 Oberlin eleven has Captain Butler Young, and Holden back at tackles; Zwick, Doane and Robertson for the center positions. Jones at a flank, Weber McPhee and Crane in the backfield. Rockwell Arvidson, McLaren and Crafts and substitute backfield material. The 1923 freshman squad includes Wagner, Tessenvitz, Jameson and Ballards at the ends; Hnache, Claymon, Heldmun, Raikula and Street in the line and Burr, Thomas, Montie and Waldron as backfield material.

Another stranger in the outfit is W. L. Hughes, of Nebraska Wesleyan and Columbia who has taken Udell Stallings place as head coach.

Hiram, also, has a new mentor in George H. Pritchard, former coach of Drury College, Springfield, Mo. Pritchard brot with him Herbert G. Mathews as a freshman coach. The Hiram eleven starts the season without Gaylord Bates, its all-Ohio tackle and John Kelker, the sensational half back of last year. But last year's Oberlin victory started Hiram's best record, winning five out of seven conference games and they found the taste pleasing.

The only other Ohio conference melee scheduled for Saturday is the Case-Muskingum combat at Cleveland. Case, the 1923 doormat, has obtained Bob Fletcher, one of Illinois' stars, as coach, and the present squad is the largest the scientists have ever displayed. But whether there is any native ability in the Case outfit to accompany the Fletcher strategy is the question.

Muskingum, under Coach Lange, with last year's creditable standing to uphold finds itself with but five veterans back and the necessity of drafting the remaining material from the last year freshman team. In this group, however, Coach Lange has some fine material, especially in Ballantyne, Kutzner, Moore, Milhone and Woodruff.

Inasmuch as Captain Wallace did not return this year, Coach Lange intends to appoint a captain for each game instead of holding another election.

In the non-conference games scheduled Wooster, Ohio Wesleyan, Mt. Union, Miami, Wittenberg, Cincinnati, Baldwin-Wallace, Ohio University and Heidelberg get under way. Wooster bumps up against the strong Ashland eleven at Wooster which is anything but a cinch game. Coach Boles has Pfeiffer at end, Hull at tackle, Manly and Layporte, guards, Gabriel, center and McCracken, center, Evans, Frump, Nelson and Kindig, tackles, Ross and Esley, ends, Winters, quarterback, Snouffer and Pearce, halfbacks and Bill Turney at full, are back.

Miami, after a rather sad season in 1923, has an almost entirely new deal, with even a new coaching staff, composed of C. M. Pitzer, former assistant to Zuppke at Illinois as head coach, assisted by Roy Tillotson, former head coach of Hiram and George Riden, an old Miami mentor. This year's squad of 50 men, includes Joseph, center, Frederickson, guard, Monette, tackle; Koop and Sloat, ends; Captain Allen, quarterback and Brashears, full back. From the freshman team of last season, Buchanan in the back field and Struhe, Birckley and Cobbledick on the line appear to be the best prospects.

Ohio University, which opens against Rio Grande at Athens has Gollings and Sawyer, ends, O'Donnell and Payne, tackles, Campbell, guard; Captain Parrett, center and Moritz, Herbert and Palmer in the backfield for the veteran continent. Sayles, a new man, will probably be at quarter, Highland at a guard position and Hudson, Keplinger, Kennard and Doran as additional back.

Coach Thorpe has his Mount Union team fighting mad to get even with the licking administered last year by Slippery Rock normal (Penna). The Mounts have a good number of old men back and with Halfback Fleming as captain, appear to have a fast, hard driving eleven.

At Springfield, Coach Ernie Godfrey's Wittenberg crew anticipate little trouble from the Olivet (Michigan) eleven and Baldwin Wallace should trounce Thiel in the season's opener at Berea. Heidelberg takes on Defiance at Defiance for a starter and the Cincinnati Bear Cats play their annual night game with Kentucky Wesleyan at Cincinnati, expecting another win as easy as the 17-0 triumph last season.

Akron doesn't open its season until Oct. 4, when it meets Hillsdale, (Mich). Coach Soleman has a hard schedule and has suffered severely from loss of veteran material. Of the remaining, Captain Mason will be at center, Brown and Wagner at guards, Limbach and Triplett at the tackles, Shook at quarter, Peifle, Thomas, Jenkins and Smith will complete the backfield. The big vacancy is at ends where the loss of Kregenow and Willyard is bitterly felt.

Scarcity of men almost amounting to indifference greeted Coach Holt Camp of Western Reserve after his creditable season of last year. New men are scare and he has only Captain John Davis, Johnson, Moss, Bone, Wisnewski, Crowl, Nank, Ruskin and Watterson of the experienced men back.

Otterbein with Rock, center, Roberts and Curr, guards, Garver, Siebert and Fausts, tackles; Porosky, end, McCarroll, full back, Beelman, half back and Phalor quarter of the veterans and Snavely, Pilkington, Carroll, and Hays, in the backfield and Felton, Schear, McKnight, Lambert and Collier on the line, of the new men, has a fairly dangerous squad and should have the best season for a good while.

Tagging The Bases

The Brooklyn Dodgers not minding the rain, which caused a postponement in Manhattan, took on the Chicago Cubs in a 12-inning struggle, winning 2 to 1, when Zach Wheat smashed a double.

Slamming Stanley Coveleskie for five runs in the ninth inning, the Yankees made a last minute runaway of their game with the Cleveland Indians, winning 10 to 4.

Mike Cvengros had nothing the Washington Senators didn't fancy. The American league leaders peppered him persistently and beat the White Sox 8 to 3.

Herman Pilette, who has pitched little this year, went to the mound for the Detroit Tigers and turned in a 3 to 1 victory over the Red Sox.

Rookies provided a considerable part of the American league matinee in St. Louis, where the Philadelphia Athletics drove Grant from the game in the seventh and beat the Browns, 5 to 7.

Ouimet-Hunter Opposition Is Match Feature

BY DAVID J. WALSH

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 23—Francis Ouimet, former open and amateur champion, shot a 75 in the first half of the qualifying round on Saturday. Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion now residing in Los Angeles, followed with a 73. Ouimet was pleased to take a 74 yesterday. Hunter's rejoinder was another 74. Today they met in the first round of the national amateur golf championship and a pleasant time was had by all. It was a case of fighter versus fighter and stylist versus match play star, Hunter being the latter.

The Ouimet-Hunter meeting was the feature match of a round more or less replete with features. These included, among others, meetings between Bobby Jones, American open champion, and W. J. Thompson, the Canadian, Bob Gardner, Chicago, and W. L. Hope. the second of three Englishmen to survive the qualifying round, Max Marston, defending champion, and Major C. O. Hezlet, the third surviving invader, D. Clark Corkran, record breaking medalist, and "Ham" Gardner, Buffalo, Chick Evans and Rudy Knepper, an all-Chicago affair, and J. Wood Platt, local nemesis of champions, and Tony Torrance, headliner of the much deleted British forces.

Perfect weather prevailed when Jones and Thompson appeared at the first tee for the opening match of the round. Popular interest centered in the Platt-Torrance and Ouimet-Hunter matches. It was an old story for Ouimet, this clash for foreign-bred competition. Frances came into overnight renown back in 1911 by beating Ted Ray and Harry Vardon out of the American title and he has been a source of constant irritation to British golf ever since.

Hunter came on to St. Louis in 1921 as British amateur champion and, after beating Bobby Jones, went all the way to the semi-finals before Bob Gardner halted him. Hunter's match play temperament has made him one of the most dangerous elements known to competitions.

WHERE THE STAGHORN SUMAC GETS HER NAME.

DAVID stopped beside the tree and ran the green leaves through his hands.

"You certainly are a pretty tree all right," he mused to himself. "I like your dark green leaves with their white linings. And they're so big. Why, that leaf right there is at least two feet long."

"You are right," laughed the tree waving her leaves proudly in the gentle breeze. "But if you think I'm pretty now, you should see me in the fall when I put on my coming-out gown. Then there's not a tree in this whole woods that can touch me for real beauty. I'm gorgeous, if I do have to say it myself."

"If you're any better looking then than you are now, you must be wonderful," said David.

"Well, I am better looking," laughed the gay tree. "There isn't a Sumac around that can touch me."

"What do you know about that?" David laughed. "I was going to ask if you were any relation to the sumac family a second ago. So you're a sumac?"

"Staghorn sumac," replied the tree. "They call me that because of my hairy forking branches, which look so much like the horns of a stag. I'm not crazy over the name, but pshaw! What's in a name? But all the same I'm some fine looking tree in the fall. I'll soon be turning to a bright scarlet shaded into purple and orange; then you'll say I'm good-looking."

"So You're a Sumac?"

"And do you have red berries like so many of the other sumacs?" asked David. "Will these stalks of seeds turn red in the Fall?"

"Indeed they do turn red and the most beautiful shade you ever saw in all your life. I hold them on my branches long into the Winter and they look just like burning candles.

"My wood is used for walking-sticks, and for tabourets, even for fancy inlaying work. If you look at it you'll see it's soft and brittle and when they polish it, it looks just like satin, of an orange and green shade."

"The very idea," laughed David. "I never knew sumac was good for anything but just to look at."

"Why, they take my young shoots, draw out the pith and use them for pipes to draw maple sap from the trees in sugaring time. What would you say to that?" and Mrs. Staghorn Sumac tossed her beautiful leaves in the air.

"I'd say that's mighty fine," replied David, "and I'm going right on home and tell my daddy about you. You'd make a lovely hedge I should think." And bidding Mrs. Staghorn Sumac goodby, David ran home.

How Madge Helped Leila With Bess Dean.

KATHERINE and I did not have as long a vigil over Mollie Fawcett as we expected.

Lillian appeared at the farmhouse in less than twenty-four hours after the girl had fled back to the farmhouse choking with terrified sobs over the ultimatum the mysterious man had given her, and announced her intention of taking Mollie to New York with her.

"It's too late for a train tonight," she said, "and I want to be in New York long before that first train out of here in the morning arrives there. I know you can't drive in the city, Madge, but couldn't you take us as far as Babylon or thereabouts? Then we could get an early train into the city. If we start at daylight——"

—"We can start before," I interrupted her, "and I have a better plan than Babylon. I'll drive you as far as Marvin—I ought to see Mrs. Durkee, anyway. You and Miss Fawcett can go on to the city, and I'll leave the car at the Durkee's and follow you later. You don't need me for anything do you?"

"Not before three o'clock this afternoon," she answered. "You must be at the apartment by then. But your before-daylight stunt is all to the mustard. Where do I sleep?"

What Edith Said.

Characteristically she said nothing more of her plans, but I noticed an odd restraint in the attitude of Mollie Fawcett toward the older woman. It was as if the girl actually feared Lillian, and this attitude persisted all through the journey, one of the swiftest I ever had made in my car.

"Remember, not later than three," Lillian said as I left her and Mollie at the Marvin station and turned my car toward the Durkee home.

We had started so early that there was no one up at the Durkee household save Edith Fairfax. She greeted me warmly—the compact I made with her to guard Leila from Bess Dean's malicious manoeuvering has materially lessened the restraint which the knowledge of her feeling for Dicky always has put between us—and Edith delightfully exclaimed over the earliness of my call.

"You don't mean you've driven in from the farm at this hour?" she said and at my affirmative, caught my hand and with the exuberant concerned hospitality of the Southern bred woman, drew me swiftly into the kitchen and poured me a cup of coffee.

"I shouldn't have touched a morsel if you had led me out of the kitchen," I said, taking the cup of steaming coffee from her hand. "How are they?"

"Mrs. Durkee is getting along beautifully," she answered. "Her visit to Aunt Dora helped her convalescence wonderfully. And Leila is all right physically, but I was just about to write and ask you to run over."

An Unexpected Ring.

I set down my cup of coffee abruptly.

"You mean Bess Dean," I interrogated sharply.

She nodded soberly.

"I thought I would be able to handle her, but she seems possessed, and rebuffs that would sorely humiliate an ordinary girl appear to roll right off her," Edith sighed. "I'm at my wits' end."

"Bess Dean has a little car now," Leila hurried on, "and every Saturday morning she appears with some present for Mrs. Durkee; fruit or flowers or something—insists upon executing some shopping commission for us in the city, parks the car here for the day, takes the train with Alfred, and although I believe the poor boy really does try to dodge her, half the time succeeds in getting the same train back.

"There's only one redeeming feature," she went on. "Leila knows it is all Bess, that Alf really isn't responsible. But I don't know how long Leila is going to keep on believing it, and in her condition the performance is impossible, anyway."

"It's worse than that," I said, my voice trembling with anger, and then there was no chance to say anything more, for Mrs. Durkee, a joyous convalescent, rushed into the kitchen, and put her arms around me, chattering volubly, and a few minutes later Leila, lovely but pale, and Alfred, royally friendly, followed her.

We were almost through breakfast when the doorbell rang, and I saw an odd little look travel around the table.

"Is that Bess Dean?" I asked rising determinedly.

"Yes," Leila whispered, looking at me.

"Out of My Way!"

"I am going to let her in," I said "and I am going to ask every one of you to keep silent, no matter what you hear me say."

I looked steadily at Alfred as I spoke, and any doubts of him I may have had were relieved by his hearty:

"Go as far as you like, old dear."

Waiting for no further permission, I walked to the front door, opened it and confronted Bess Dean.

"Well! Look who's here!" she exclaimed jauntily, then her eyes narrowed as she saw my set face.

"Come in—this far," I said, retreating before her, until I barred her passage to the dining room. "Now I am going to give you an important bit of information. You have made your last visit to this house. You have seen Alfred Durkee for the last time, and you will drop this asinine pursuit of him at once."

Her merry nonchalance slipped from her as if it were a cloak, and it was suddenly a wild creature that faced me.

"Get out of my way before I scratch your eyes out!" she said, and meant it.

"Very well, if you must have it," I said slowly, stepping aside from the door. "But if you pass this door, I shall go in and tell them why you were discharged from the faculty of that girls' school concerning which you have spun so many pleasant yarns for our edification."

"The Old Gag!"

She stopped as if my words had been so many bullets, and I paid a mental tribute to the will-power that enabled her to conquer her palpable desire to spring upon me, and to mask her baffled anger with a nonchalant smile.

"You seem to hold trumps in this particular game," she said. "But remember that there are other games, you—you sneaking spy!"

Her self-control failed her before she finished, and she hurled the last words at me. Then she turned, and slamming the door after her, ran down the steps.

I felt a sudden reluctance to face Alfred, wondering how he would react to the thing I had done. But even as we heard the vicious starting of Bess Dean's motor, Alfred appeared in the doorway, with his arm around Leila, while his mother and Edith crowded close to his shoulder.

"You certainly have done us a great service, Mrs. Madge," he said gravely, "but——"

Little Mrs. Durkee interrupted him ruthlessly.

"Madge! However, did you know that about her?"

"I didn't," I answered quietly.

They all stared, and then Alfred burst into a great laugh with so relieved a note in it that I realized he had wondered for an instant if I had played the role which Bess Dean had thrust upon me at parting.

"The old gag, by George!" he exclaimed. "Fly at once. Everything is discovered! Well, you certainly deserve the laurel wreath, old top!"

But Leila kissed me with shining eyes.

YOUR HEALTH

Seek Immediate Aid in Acute Glaucoma Case

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND.

SOME pains seem worse than others. No one of us is happy over any form of pain, but somehow pain in the eye or the ear seems harder to bear than other varieties.

Of course, an eye pain carries with it fear that blindness may be added to the physical torture. This means a combination of mental and physical unhappiness.

There is a disease of the eye called "glaucoma." While there is a painless form, the acute variety is extremely agonizing.

The common name for glaucoma is "hardening of the eyeball." The reason this is given is because the eyeball actually hardens, so that it may feel like a stone.

Close one eye and place the ends of your index fingers on the upper lid. With great gentleness press rather firmly, first with one finger and then with the other. Under the fingers the eyeball will feel like a thin rubber ball full of water.

In glaucoma the eye has become so hard that you fail to observe the fluctuation of the fluid-filled organ.

The eyeball consists of a rather elastic envelope which contains the humors of fluids. If a tiny knife were pushed through this covering, the humors would escape and the eyeball would fall in like a football with the air out.

These fluids are constantly renewed, so there may be said to be a flow through the eyeball. The supply through secretion just equals the quantity which is drained off into the blood stream. The normal eye, therefore, has a fairly uniform feeling in pressure.

In glaucoma, something disturbs the normal flow of the eye fluids. The waste canals are obstructed and the fluid dams up and accumulates until the eyeball becomes hard as a marble. This is glaucoma.

You can see that the pressure of the imprisoned fluid will cause the delicate nerves of the eye to cry out with pain. They are pinched and crowded, and suffering must result.

Worse than this, however, is the effect of this internal pressure on the nerve of sight, the optic nerve. It may produce collapse of the nerve-head and cut off the normal transmission of light to the brain. This means partial or complete blindness in the affected eye.

Immediate treatment is required and with proper care it is possible to remove the trouble and restore sight.

T. M. H. C. Q.—What can be done for very large fingers, hands and arms in a young girl of twenty?

A.—This is probably a natural condition and nothing can be done.

M. A. C. Q.—Is there anything that can be done for a child who has the whooping cough?

A.—Vaccine treatments often prove beneficial. Take your child to the family physician for an examination and treatment.

WINIFRED BLACK ASKS What's the Happiest Life?

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

WHAT do you know about Geraldine?

All the girls are talking about her, and some of the girls are laughing and some are sighing and some are shrugging their shoulders.

Some of them are sorry for Geraldine. Some think she's a fool and pity her for that. Others think she's an angel and admire her for that. And some look at her and envy her the peace and happiness in her bright eyes.

Geraldine has been married not quite five years—and she has two babies—one's a boy and one's a girl.

She and her husband have a darling little home—nothing grand about it, but it's comfy and pleasant and homelike. Geraldine had a terrible time getting the hydrangeas well started at the front porch, and there was a tree in the little side garden that simply wouldn't grow. Geraldine said, out of mere stubbornness.

She watered that tree and she dug around the roots of it and she fertilized the ground—and the mean little tree stood there and folded its branches like stubborn little arms and simply would not grow an inch.

And now, all at once, it has started to growing, and the hydrangeas were perfectly gorgeous this summer—and what do you think? Geraldine is going to move.

To Live Their Own Lives.

She says the little house is too small for her, now that there are two babies, instead of one. And, besides, she and Billy have made up their minds to have a good, big family—oh, six or eight children, anyhow, girls or boys—they don't care much which!

Billy sort of hopes for twin sons—there are twins in the family on Billy's side, but Geraldine hopes they won't come in pairs. She hates to think of two birthday cakes and two pairs of rompers to be changed at the same time.

Oh, yes, they're quite in earnest, Geraldine and Billy!

And what do you think! They're going out in the country to live—it's a house Geraldine's great-aunt has left to her.

An old-fashioned duck of a house, with a broad hall running through the middle of it, and a queer pair of steep, old-fashioned stairs and a fanlight over the doorway and an orchard, bless you, yes, and a flower garden and a vegetable garden and a barn—not a garage, mind you; a barn with hay in it and room for two ponies and a pony cart!

But they're going to build a garage, so that Billy can run back and forth from town in no time.

And they're going to furnish the old house with old furniture and chintzes and things, with pink gingham curtains in the kitchen and a morning-glory vine on the back porch, and they're going to begin really to live.

And some people think they're crazy, and some think they're merely feeble-minded, and others think they are just the wisest couple in the world.

Geraldine and Billy don't seem to care very much what anybody says.

They're dead in love with each other, and they like the country and they adore children, and they love dogs and ponies, and gardens and fairy stories, and the Alcott books and the "Last of the Mohicans," and all kinds of old-fashioned things, and——

They're going to live their own lives their own way, and if their friends don't like it, the friends know what they can do.

Has Geraldine Chosen Well?

And Geraldine is as pretty as a pink and as gay as a bird, and Billy is a wonderful dancer, and if you could hear him strum the ukulele you'd never think—honestly, now, don't you wish you were Geraldine?

Don't you wish you and your young husband were going to move into that old-fashioned house this very day, and put up curtains and throw down rugs, and weed the garden and keep the children on the right side of the gate, and sit on the side porch and help the cook shell peas and laugh and grow younger and gayer every time a new baby came into the house?

Hasn't she chosen the happiest life in the world?

What do you think about it, honestly?

I do wish you'd tell me.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

"Built-ins" Solve Many Problems Beautifully.

Where the rooms are small and you are not an owner it is foolish to buy a lot of things just to fit these particular rooms. It is cheaper to build in a few things and when you go take them out. Or if you feel they have served their purpose, leave them. A corner closet for the dining room, for instance, can be made in such a way that it can be removed. The closet may have a door below concealing two shelves, a space above the door may become a resting place for saucer pieces used on the table; above that a glass paneled or diamond paneled door may close on three shelves with little hooks under each for the fine tea and coffee cups. The closet holds much more than a china closet that could be purchased for a small room and it takes up only a corner.

In a space behind standing steam pipes open shelves placed from the floor as high as need be, will take a lot of the books and do away with buying the extra bookcase that makes the room still smaller. Where there is a door into another room not absolutely needed, shelves that will hold many books may be placed across the opening.

The space above the radiator in a corner of the room may be fitted with shelves for books. All these suggestions are made to use space which does not take from the size of the room.

One woman had a carpenter make a box holding two shelves and placed on casters to roll right under the grand piano and in it she kept her music. On the front at either side were two handles that made it very easy to manage.

If the kitchen is small a drop leaf may be hinged to the end of the table and makes a fine ironing board. By repairing and building in we can save buying much unneeded furniture.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Charming New Fall Coat.

MADAME has been putting a lot of time and interest in the development of her new Fall coats.

"It pays to have as interesting and varied a coat line as is possible," she said to me this morning.

I admired the coat I was modeling for her at the moment.

"Yes, I like it too," Madame agreed. "It furnishes a smart note of difference, and it is undoubtedly the type that will appeal to a number of my most exclusive clients."

I walked away so she could have a good view of the plain straight-line back treatment.

"Our new Fall burnt russet is undoubtedly a good shade," Madame remarked, as I advanced toward her again.

"And it is perfect with this gay leopard fur," I contributed.

"You seem to like the leopard and the way I've used it here as much as I do," Madame said in a well-pleased tone.

I glanced down at the smart, puffed cuffs of leopard and the leopard facing that ran up the front of the coat and was just revealed along the closing line.

"These cuffs are simply adorable," I said.

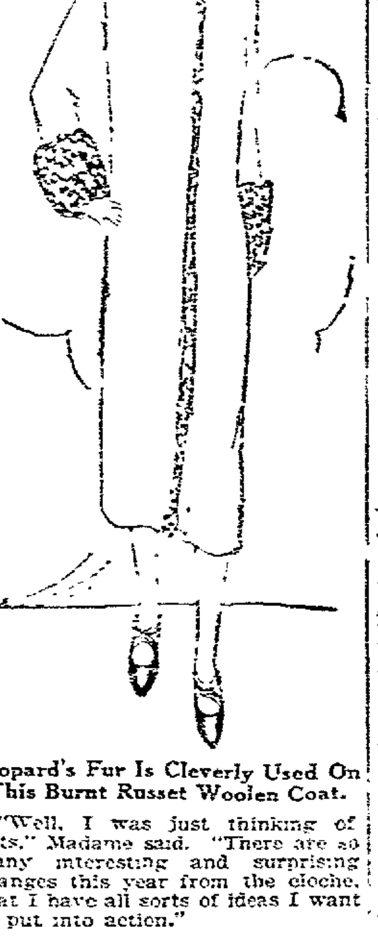

"I think the puffed treatment to offset the long tight sleeve is smart," Madame agreed. She added that she intended to use the same idea in other coats, sometimes introducing cuffs and collar of contrasting material instead of fur.

"Leopard fur is so gay and youthful that I am very fond of using it for my younger clients," Madame said.

"I remember several of the young girls who wore short leopard jackets last Winter with gay colored woolen frocks, and who always looked so attractive," I said reminiscently.

"Well, I intend to use leopard for a lot of my youthful clients this coming Winter," Madame assured me.

"What else are you going to stress?" I asked, all interest.

Leopard's Fur Is Cleverly Used On This Burnt Russet Woolen Coat.

"Well, I was just thinking of hats," Madame said. "There are so many interesting and surprising changes this year from the cloche, that I have all sorts of ideas I want to put into action."

"Will you use many big hats?" I asked.

"Some," Madame answered. "They are so attractive on some people that I must have a few big hats for dress wear."

"How about turbans?" I asked.

"I am going to use a lot of them," Madame replied. She added that they were so practical for knock-about wear and so convenient to wear with coats that had soft fur collars pulled up high about the neck.

"There's no brim on the turban to interfere with such a collar," she explained. "I found that when cloches were in style I had to make practically all my coat collars on the same narrow lines, and I intend to have almost as much variety in collars as in hats for the coming season."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.

An active and fortunate day is forecast from the prevailing stellar operations, but good management would be exercised in order to bring forth the most propitious conditions. Changes or travel of importance would nullify the most favorable aspects and there should be the determination to remain self-contained and calm. Under the excellent Jupiter figure there should be growth in business and increase of money, especially in those connections having to do with publishings, writings or contracts.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a prosperous and gratifying year, with the fulfillment of many ambitions and desires, but they may well refrain from radical change or travel. It is a good time for renewing contracts and pushing for more money. A child born on this day should be popular, ambitious, versatile and should rise in life through its own efforts. It will be generally fortunate in its undertakings, but must be well-trained.

Mrs. Sweetin

tion—that he had poisoned his wife and Mrs. Sweetin had poisoned her husband, preceded her confirmation.

She steadfastly denied until today any connection with the crime, which Rev. Hight yesterday said he committed.

The killings were arranged and executed because of the great love they bore each other, Mrs. Sweetin declared. She said she administered the poison obtained for her by the jockey-preacher three times before itp roved effective.

No sooner had word of the latest confession—the fourth which has featured this case, spread thru the town than the mob which, thru the night gathered in little knots about the jail here began to augment. Additional deputies were sworn in as fast as Sheriff Grant Holcomb could round them up and all possible precautions to prevent mob violence was taken.

Hight, fearful always since his first confessions, cowered in his cell, his eyes anxiously turning as a new footstep sounded in the corridors. At all sounds, he called to his jailer to learn their meaning. The terror of a violent death was in his eyes.

The text of the latest confession was given out by State's Attorney F. G. Thompson, shortly before 9 o'clock. It reads—

"The first time I noticed that Lawrence Hight had any feeling of affection for me was in April, 1924. Then my husband, for some time had treated me with an apparent lack of love.

"About three months ago Rev. Hight suggested to me that he get me some poison to give my husband and he said he would do the same to his wife.

"At first I was horrified, but he talked so plausibly and I had such confidence in him that it seemed to me to be the right thing to do. It was finally agreed that I was to administer poison to my husband, Wilford Sweetin and Rev. Hight was to administer poison to his wife, Anna. A week or two before my husband was hurt in a mining accident. Hight told me to give some poison to Wilford in anything.

"On July 26, I gave him some arsenic in a drugstore at Benton. He became ill but improved and on the following Tuesday I gave him some in his oatmeal.

"On July 27, I gave him the final dose of poison and he died on July 28.

"The final dose was administered in tomato soup.

"Every time Hight came to the house he gave me some encouragement to give Wilford more poison.

"I had become infatuated with Hight but had always before been a true and faithfulw ife and mother, so help me God."

All night long the state's attorney, Sheriff Holcomb and Deputy Joseph Holcomb, his son, had taken turns in questioning the woman. And all thru the night her repeated answer to all questions, to all accusations was—

"I did not give him any poison. Hight must have done it."

Then without any warning, the minister was led from his cell into the state's attorney's office where the woman sat. The sheriff and prosecutor left them seemingly alone for a "conference"but at a rear door, left slightly ajar, they listened.

"How have you been?" the minister first asked solicitously.

"Very well, Lawrence," the woman answered.

There was a pause while those at the door strained their ears to catch the conversation which was continued in half whispers.

"You know that you are guilty," was Hights next comment to the woman for whom he forsook the wife of 20 years and their three children. "I don't think I should take all the blame."

They led the minister away. He broke down as he reached the door, turned back once to gaze at the woman for whom he had done murder and said—

"I love that woman. I think she reciprocates the love."

Half an hour later the woman broke under the strain of grilling she poured out her story in a torrent of words and then calm, and apparently unmindful of what fate might await her, penned the confession with the same pen which only a few hours before Hight had written his third confession in which he named her as Wilford Sweetin's murderer.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—With transactions again declining and trading confined to market leaders, price changes in the stock market were mostly fractionally in the early trading today.

The return of speculative interest to the public utility stocks were signified by a stronger market for North American Consolidated Gas. United Railways Investment preferred and other stocks in that group, with gains in the maximum of two points.

Slight gains were made also in first prices of American Can, United States Steel, Baldwin. American smelting and others of the industrial leaders, as well as in the leading rails and specialties, most of the latter being under sponsorship of bullish pools by whom their market movements are closely supervised. Some of the oil stocks continued their moderate rise, the best records being made by Royal Dutch, Phillips Petroleum and the Standard Oils, while Sinclair and Cosden sold off under pressure.

The half-yearly statement of Cosden and Co., issued today, made a good comparison with the same period last year but Crude Oil and gasoline prices have been much lower since the first of may. The second half of the year will furnish a real test to all the oil companies of the country.

The lower rate for time funds and the super abundance of call money characterized the money markets. The cotton market was dull, pending the publication of the government's report at noon. Trading in some stocks was retarded by reason of important dividend meetings of board of directors later in the day. Foreign exchange markets were steady, bond market strong. Wheat prices advanced about one cent a bushel on the Chicago board of trade but corn was irregular with September down one cent a bushel.

Council

should be brot back into the city's control. The transfer ordinance provides that it shall never be sold, mortgaged, leaseed or otherwise encumbered, and with the clause giving council power to take it back if it is seen that the trustees are too extravagant there can be no danger in the transfer in the opinion of councilmen.

The trustees are appointed by the board of education. There are seven, with one retiring each year. The present members are—J. J. Dolan, chairman, C. K Clemens, W. W. March, James Stuart, Mrs. F. E. Pomerene, Miss Carrie Wagner and Mrs Thomas Brown.

HERSHBERG HERE

Hershberg was present last night and spoke for a few minutes, explaining that the council can, with the amended ordinance, recall the property if anything arises in the future to make such a move necessary. Other cities have also added the same clause, he added.

Mr. Dolan, chairman of the board of trustees, was present and addressed council when called upon. He declared that the present members of the board have been going along for years on practically nothing with which to operate the library, and that they were reluctant to again be appointed to serve, merely because of this fact.

Dolan continued to say that the library is as much a necessity to a community as a school is and that there is less ignorance where the use of a free public library is available. To emphasize this point, Dolan pointed to the cases of boys who are now great men and who gained the most of their knowledge by use of the books from the public library.

COSTS $6,000 YEAR

Last year the library was allotted $1,600 for operating expenses, Mr Dolan pointed out. This year they asked for $6,600 for the reason that last year's amount was inadequate. At the advice of the school board, however, this was cut to slightly more than $6,000, and this amount will not be more than enough to conduct the library as it should be, Dolan contends.

President E. S. Gaumer appeared heartily in favor of the change, declaring in a few words to council that it would do away with the necessity of raising $6,600.

On the first vote on the resolution, Councilman J. Wesley Clark voted "No," but changed it to "Yes" in the final vote. All voted affirmatively for its passage, except Councilman Hammond Moffitt.

Councilman Clark explained his first vote by saying that he was not in favor of taxing the businesses of the city too heavily, but he was told that a great increase would not be necessary. "I don't question the integrity of the members of city council or of the library trustees, but we have already placed a burden on the businesses of our city and it should not be greatly enlarged," he said.

Moffitt explained his negative vote by saying, "What we need is a re-appraisement, and we will get no re-appraisement as long as we keep on this way."

At the next regular meeting an ordinance will probably be ready and the council will be prepared to take the last step necessary for the transfer.

HEALTH BOARDS QUESTION

The discussion of the question of uniting the city and county health boards into one organization started when one councilman declared that his garbage hadn't been collected since September 1.

This announcement was followed by a talk by Mayor H. B. Heaton, in which he said the health board has not been functioning in the past as well as it should have been. The mayor pointed out that the two organizations are so closely related that in many instances it is necesary for them to work together.

CRISWELL ASKS INCREASE

Dr. D. M. Criswell, present head of the county health board, asks $600 additional money if appointed head of the joined organization. He now receives $3,600 a year, and with the added amount would receive $3,600. Besides this, he asks for an assistant, who would, according to estimates last night, cost approximately $1,200 a year, making a total of about $4,800 for two. The county and city of Coshocton together would stand this cost at the ratio of 40 to 60—40 per cent by the city and 60 per cent by the county.

There is due the city, from the state health board, compensation for the past two years, according to Mayor H B Heaton. This was explained by him before council. For each dollar the local organization expends for furthering the interests of health work, the state board furnishes a like amount, but because of the inadequacy of the local board during the past few years, it having been inactive most of the time, nothing was received, the mayor said.

The exact amount that will come from the state is not yet known. But with this help and the combining the two local boards, Coshocton will be fortunate in having a health board worked up to a high degree of efficiency, the mayor believes.

A system of regulating traffic, known as the parallel system, was advocated for use in Coshocton by Councilman Walter Fitch of the street committee, who has recently returned from a vacation trip. While away, Fitch had the opportunity of studying different methods by which traffic on busy city streets is handled, and comparing them.

The "parallel system" is the most effective and economical, in his estimation. Under this method several streets are designated as thru streets and traffic on these goes along at 15 or 20 miles per hour, with no regard for traffic coming in from intersecting streets. Traffic coming on to these main thorofares must first come to a dead stop before entering.

Fitch advised that Chestnut, Main, Walnut and South Seventh-sts be declared thru streets.

Work of estimating the cost of installing automatic traffic lights is now under way and the estimate may be announced at the next regular meeting.

A request for a new city street sweeper, to replace the present worn-out one, was made by Joseph Robson, street commissioner. From Mr. Robson's report, the sweeper now in use is a relic. Used on the streets of Coshocton for either 26 or 27 years, placed in the junk pile at one time and later renovated, the old, horse-drawn sweeper has finally reached the end of its usefulness. No repairs can be obtained for it because few of its kind are still in use, Robson declares.

A new, horse-drawn sweeper would cost approximately $500, and one propelled by motor, about $900, according to estimates last night. A few councilmen seemed averse to purchasing another horse-drawn sweeper, declaring that more than twice as much can be accomplished with a more modern type.

The matter was referred to the street committee to report at the next meeting.

To stop the practice of burning rubbish or trash in any alley or street in the city an ordinance embracing this subject was asked by James Tracewell, fire chief.

An ordinance authorizing the transfer of $1,000 from the general fund to the safety fund was passed.

Council, in the brief recess, studied a map relative to street lighting. Further action, with a view of renewing the city lighting contract with the Ohio Service Company will be taken soon.

Enrollment in Ag. Dept. High

This year's enrollments in the two high school vocational agriculture departments of Coshocton-co at Coshocton and West Lafayette, surpass those of any former years, according to Directors C. H. Ross and A. E. Halterman.

At West Lafayette, 15 boys are entered in the farm crops class, ten in farm shops and eight in agricultural engineering, Mr. Halterman stated.

In Coshocton high school, 19 boys are working in the animal husbandry class, 11 in the farm shops department, and seven are taking farm management according to Mr. Ross.

All of the students in both high school departments are boys who are coming in from the farms of the county to take advantage of these courses.

"Ag" Students Cull Flocks of Chickens

The boys of the vocational agricultural department of Coshocton high school have been conducting a series of poultry culling demonstrations in flocks near Coshocton, under the direction of Director C H. Ross, the first of this week.

Monday forenoon, one of the class periods of the department was occupied by driving to the farm of Simon Price, near the Randles bridge and culling Mr Price's flock of White Leghorn layers.

On Tuesday morning, Mr. Ross, with the 19 boys in the class in animal husbandry, drove to the Cambridge road home of George Henderson, one of the members of the class, and culled the flock of 208 White Leghorn pullets reared by young Henderson in a vocational project the past summer.

From the 208 pullets 26 were culled, leaving a winter laying flock of 182, which will be housed, the coming winter, in the 25 by 30 Ohio multiple house recently built by Henderson. These pullets started laying a few days ago. Last Sunday morning, Henderson gathered 30 eggs from the flock—pullets were nine days over five better than 16 per cent—when the month of age.

BUCYRUS—The arrest and conviction of Albert P. Flechtner for speeding in an automobile, reveals that Mrs Frankie Freese, county sheriff, has taken a hand in the fast driving game. A deputy caught Flechtner driving 41 miles an hour on the Columbus-Sandusky road.

EAST LIVERPOOL—Increased rates for postal boxes at the downtown postoffice will become effective October 1, Postmaster Edwin McClure announced. The increase ranges from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent, depending upon the size of the box. Box rentals are regulated by the revenue derived from the sale of stamps, post cards and stamped envelopes.

A well-known Columbus banker takes particular delight in recalling how he got his start in financial affairs.

He had been working for an iron concern, doing a man's work and receiving a boy's pay, when one evening an older brother informed him that he had arranged for the younger boy to work in Mr. M's bank.

Delighted at the prospect of working behind the grilled windows, the now prominent banker appeared at the institution next morning, asking to see Mr. M. When informed that the banker was away, he remarked that he had been employed. He was set to work doing odd jobs.

When the banker returned and saw the new employe, and inquired of the cashier who hired him. The cashier then related how the boy had led him to believe Mr. M. had engaged him.

"I didn't hire you, buddy," the banker told the lad, "but since you're here, you might as well stay."

Now that boy is trusted with the management and control of that same institution.

ELYRIA — Laura Stephens, of Ridgeville, asks $10,000 damages from the Red Star Bus Co., and the Cleveland, Columbus and Southwestern Electric Co. She alleges she was permanently injured when she alighted from the bus and while giving assistance to a companion, was struck by the street car. She alleged the bus company was partially at fault for permitting passengers to alight on a grade crossing.

COLUMBUS—Thirty counties of the state notified the Ohio Good Roads Federation, at a meeting of its trustees here, that they would vote at the November election on levies for local road purposes. The proposed levies are for one or two mills, extending over a period of from 3 to 5 years. If all levies are adopted, it is estimated, $4,000,000 annually will become available for local road purposes. The federation is to assist in the campaign for adoption of the levies.

LOGAN — The Ohio Forestry Association will hold its yearly meeting in the form of a two-day motor trip through the scenic district about Old Man's cave in Hocking county. The state is being urged to purchase this territory for a southeastern Ohio park.

MIDDLEPORT—Postmaster Beeson, of Middleport, has been asked to take bids up to October 1, for new quarters and new equipment for the local postoffice. It is expected to start a row in some quarters when it becomes generally known that present quarters are to be abandoned.

NELSONVILLE—The state highways department has arranged for the abondenment of the famous Carbonhill detour just north of here, leaving the Athens Columbus route open all the way through. This detour for months has been a terror to thousands of motor car drivers.

ATHENS — It is reported here that one of the proposed new district bureaus of the Ohio Bureau of Juvenile Research will shortly be located in Athens. A location here is favored, it is said, because of the availability of psychologists on the Ohio University faculty, and members of the medical staff of the Athens insane hospital.
